Everybody's Talking About magicJack:

"If you've pondered ditching your landline because of exorbitant phone bills, magicJack just may be for you. We were pleasantly surprised with how easy it is to use and the quality it provides for less than $40." - Laptop

"A new device, the magicJack, may provide the cheapest way for anyone to start making calls using an ordinary landline phone. It is definitely the easiest to use." - The Boston Globe

"The magicJack, which comes with its own telephone number, offers the flexibility of making and receiving calls for free wherever the device is plugged in around the world." - BBC

"The magicJack, however, has a real telephone jack on the side, letting you quickly bring almost any corded or cordless phone into the 21st century." - The New York Times

"For $20 a year, you get unlimited calling in the US and Canada. Pretty cool stuff, and it's so easy, I would even recommend it to my parents." - CNET

"On one end is a USB connector that plugs directly into the computer. On the other end is a regular phone jack where you plug in your phone. And that's it. It's probably the simplest hookup in Internet telecommunications." - Los Angeles Times

"Skype and Vonage killer. Company must be watched." - CNBC

"Who's the fastest growing fixed line telephone company in the U.S? It's not Verizon or AT&T ... (it's magicJack)." - Associated Press
